JESUS TEACHING IN THE TEMPLE

LESSON TEXT—Matthew 22:1-22.

GOLDEN TEXT—Render unto the Lord the glory due unto his name; bring an offering, and come before him: worship the Lord in the beauty of holiness. Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy mind.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Jesus Teaching in the Temple.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Jesus in the Temple.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Loyalty to Jesus a Test of Discipleship.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Who Is a Good Citizen?

In the previous parable, the supersublimity of the kingdom of heaven was set before us in the light of the obligation we owe to the householder the fruits of his vineyard. In this one the emphasis is placed upon the privilege of entering into the king. Christ's kingdom is infinitely more than a system of laws and regulations to be obeyed.

1. The Marriage Feast (vv. 1-14).

The parable of the marriage feast sets forth under the figure of marriage. The highest love of God and friendship known to the world is compared to marriage.

1. The king's invitation declined (vv. 1-7).

The previous parable showed the attitude of the Jewish people toward the king up to the crucifixion. This one carries us beyond the cross, even to the present age of the Gentiles. The marriage feast which the king made for his son and to which he invited guests, represents the gracious offer of God to give joy and blessing to His creatures. This feast has been made in honor of his son, and is an exceeding rich one. The repeated invitations show God's earnestness in desiring to bless men. They not only suggested it, but made light of it and hurried on to their worldly business, showing their disregard for the invitation of their souls. Some did violence to the messengers of the king, even killing them. Primarily, this is a picture of the attitude of the Jews from Christ's crucifixion to the destruction of Jerusalem, but it has its counterpart in the present day.

2. The king's invitation accepted (vv. 8-10).

When those first invited refused, the king sent his servants to others, for his table must be provided with guests. The Lord's table has been prepared at infinite cost.

3. The king inspecting the guests (vv. 11-14).

As a result of this inspection, one was found without a wedding garment. Failure, therefore, to conform to the regulation of the feast was an insult to the king. The wedding garment provided for each one invited to the Lord's table is the righteousness of Christ.

II. The Wonderful Wisdom of the King (vv. 15-22, 34-40).

That which called forth this wisdom was the effort of the leaders to entrap Jesus.

1. The tribute money (vv. 15-22).

The Herodians sought to test His loyalty to the Roman government; therefore, they came to him with the subtle question, "Is it lawful to give tribute unto Cæsar, or not?" For Christ to have answered "Yea" would have conveyed the impression of endorsement of the Roman government, and "No" would have brought him into conflict with the government. Christ's reply to this question is the final word on the Christian's relationship to civil government.

2. Concerning the resurrection (vv. 23-30).

The Sadducees did not believe in the resurrection. To entrap Him they placed before Him a hypothetical case of a woman who had had seven husbands—as to whose wife she would be in the resurrection. The Scriptures make it clear that marriage is only for this life; that in the resurrection human beings will be as angels of God.

3. The great commandment in the law (vv. 34-40).

(1) The first commandment (vv. 34-38). "Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart." Supreme and undivided love to God is the first and great commandment. (2) The second commandment (vv. 39, 40). This is like the first, in that it centers in love. The measure of love to my neighbor is my self-love.

4. The question put by Christ (vv. 41-46).

The mystery of Christ being the son of David and at the same time being David's Lord put to silence all those who had sought to embarrass Him.

Our Prayers

Our prayers are ships. We send them to no uncertain port. They are destined for the throne of grace; and while they take a cargo of supplications from us, they come back argosies laden with the riches of divine grace.—Presbyterian of the South.

Our Supreme Duty

Our supreme duty is to give ourselves to Christ, and with ourselves all that we possess.—Bishop E. R. Hoss.

Job Work A Specialty

When I Pass Away

If permitted I'm going to express my self
In a few compliments to you that I'll send.
You have always been faithful and true
You have been my very best friend.
Your terrestrial home is Richmond
A place that you admire the best.
But there still remaineth a sweeter home
In that land of the realms of the blest.
For none can ever anywhere compare
With that glorious home beyond the sky.
Where a Heavenly Father is waiting to receive us
Where pleasure there never shall die.
There's lots in this world for us to contend with,
For trials and troubles there seem to be no end with.
May they disappear before you like dew before the sun
And after the dark and stormy, till life's work is done.
We all within our graves shall slumber
There will be no limit in regard to number.
We will all meet where our Maker demands us all
For we will none day answer our Master's call.
You will be there some day, among the blest,
Where your weary soul will be at rest.
And meet all of your loved ones gone before
From earth to dwell on that beautiful shore.
What a happy meeting over there will be
When we meet with those, that we cannot see,
Those who preceded us many years ago—
Who've gone to live with Jesus on the heavenly shore.
You do your duty here to every one around
There will be multitudes of starts in your crown.
The Lord will be with you, he will still give you aid
When you cross over the river, to rest in the shade.
And when the tidal wave of that river you cross
There will be numbers in thousands to mourn your loss
It will be heart rendering to those you leave behind
To think of such a dear one, so loving and kind.
May you witness many more years to come
Be healthy and happy, and joy fill your home,
Yes, and for many more happy decades
And may God bless you, in all your future days.
I too endeavor to live an honest and upright life
The woman who has been John Goodwin's second wife,
Though gladly leave it now, for the public to consider
The one here left behind, as Major Goodwin's widow.
He has left me and gone to a mansion up above
Where all over there is peace happiness and love,
I'll meet him again some day, on the celestial shore
When I leave this terrestrial home, to return to it no more.
I can picture hime here in my mind to-day
The Sabbath day he left me, to pass from earth away,
Well do I remember his sweet but sad story
Saying only a few moments more, and I shall be over in glory.
For on the 20th of January, he was gently called to go
To leave his earthly dwelling place, for one on a happier shore,
In the year 1924 with patience he seemed to wait
For God to send an angel, to open for him the gate.
So promptly on this date at half-past eleven
He was summoned to leave this home, for a palace up in Heaven
He was willing at the hour and seemed prepared to go
Where the hardships of this life will trouble him no more.
It was the severest and coldest winter morning
That brought to me this sad and gloomy warning,
That the soul of my dear one, on this very day
From earth, to heaven, was swiftly passing away.
So an angel from Heaven, came down to let him in
To join their happy band, and meet with all his kin,
To that home where endless joy shall await me.
Just give to me the flowers here, in this life
Hereafter your kindness save,
You need not waste your beautiful flowers
To wilt upon my lonely grave.
For there will sure be some dear friend
That will wish to lay me with the blest.
But regarding my body, I do not care
Just so my soul's at rest.
To my friends it would be much better
If to those we love we would give,
The kind and tender words while they are with us
Than to speak them over our graves.
Those who are gone no longer need them
Words they once walked so long to know.
While they lived on earth are now numbered
On their poor cold dead ears below.
And when the time shall arrive for me to go
And visions to my eyes seem dim,
Implore thee Lord take charge of my soul
And pardon my every sin.
For when my Lord from this earth my soul is taking
And I sleep that last sleep
That long waking.
And the last great trumpet for us shall sound
I'm hoping in the Kingdom of God to be found.

Nurse Tells How CARDUI Helped Her

Mrs. W. A. Cox, a well-known professional nurse, of Burnside, Ky., writes:

"I was in very bad health, and only weighed 110 pounds. As I ran the papers about Cardui, and thought I would give it a try. After I had taken one bottle, I could see that I was improving. After I had taken it a month or two, I began to gain, and I weigh at present 168, and have weighed that for some time. I am now 55 years old, and can do as much work as the average middle-aged woman can.

"I would advise any woman, who is weakly and in a run-down condition, to try Cardui, but not to expect one bottle to make her well. I take two or three bottles a year, now, and I feel fine."

Another interprise for Appomattox, which deserves the support of the community.

APPOMATTOX FAIR

The Great Appomattox Fair will be a great fair indeed this year. The dates will be several weeks earlier, Sept. 16 to 20. The fair will open Tuesday night, Sept. 16, and close Saturday night, Sept. 20, giving you 5 nights and 4 days. Good racing program is being arranged. Fireworks have been bought and will be the most elaborate ever fired off here. Contract has been let to the H. & B. Shows" to furnish Midway attractions. This show's slogan is :"The Cleanest Midway on earth", and it well deserves the name. There shall be no show, side or concession on the grounds that will not be absolutely clean and suitable for every man, woman and child to see.

As in previous 17 years, we follow the Richmond Fair, and negatiations are under way to bring some of the free acts direct from that great Fair.

This will be "branner" year for Appomattox Fair. Plan your exhibits now.

The program of the Epworth League on Sunday night was in charge of members of the Farmville League. It was much enjoyed and hope they will come again soon.

LIBERTY BAPTIST CHURCH

Mother's Day will be observed at Liberty Baptist Church Sunday at 11:00 A. M. There will be no evening preaching service. There were many visitors and strangers at Sunday's service. We are glad you are in town. Come again.

Music and Comedy

The sparkling musical comedy "See You Later" will be presented by local talent Friday, May 9th, 8:15 P. M., at the High School Auditorium under auspices of the Appomattox Baseball Club.

The costumes are gorgeous, the music snappy and the play so interesting that it holds the audience with a great degree of suspence from the time the curtain rises until it falls on the "Grand Finale."

Ten of Appomattox's most talented and attractive young ladies and gentlemen have been selected to play the leading roles, supported by a large number of choruses.

To our cast of characters belong:

Donald McKay, a business man, our hero—George Langran, Sollie Goldstein, a very Hebraic Jew—John C. Stanley, Percy Vere, a foppish henpecked Englishmmer—R. W. Wilkins. Mr. Milrox, New York Millionaire, Mary's father—Homer Babcock, Mary, our heroine—Sara Bates, Sally Forth, Mary's cousin, a giggling frivolous creature—Phoebe O'Brien, Jeff, Negro janitor and butler—Ned Hancock, Speedy, impertinent office boy—James Langran, Neverre Spottsem, of the Goofus Correspondence School of Detectives—W. T. Smith, Mable Knott, the gum-chewing, primping stenographer—Avis Brown.

COLORED FOLK.

We are glad to hear Edward Meggerson is improving.

Herbert Pankey, Thomas Statham and Margaret Johnson, of Sparrows Point, Md., are spending some time with their people.

John W. Lewis has purchased a car and McKinley Lewis a new Chevrolet truck.

Agee's school children enjoyed Field Day at Appomattox the 25th of April. Also the parents from this place enjoyed Supt. Burke's and Mr. Brumfield's talk.

BEFORE another committee, that of the senate on lobbying, the liquor issue also was dominant. Henry H. Curran, president of the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment, had been summoned to tell of the activities of the officials of that organization, and he proved a very lively witness. In his first day's testimony he predicted the development of a new national party made up of the wet elements of both the Republican and Democratic parties, the platform for which already has been written by Dr. Samuel H. Church, president of the Carnegie Institute of Technology. He said Pierre du Pont has indorsed the proposal and has said the new party will be successful. As for lobbying, Mr. Curran freely admitted his association took part in the campaigns in Wisconsin and Illinois for repeal of the state liquor laws, but said he didn't see what that had to do with "lobbying in and around Washington," which is the subject of the committee's inquiry and of which he declared the association had not been guilty.

Next day Senator Robinson of Indiana came to bat with sensational charges that Curran's association had "peddled with members of the United States Supreme Court." He produced letters written by T. W. Phillips, Jr., Republican gubernatorial aspirant in Pennsylvania and a director of the association, to Senator Stone and to Justice Sanford, and denounced them as "the most amazing thing I ever heard of."

Three hundred delegates representing one hundred thousand members of the Women's Organization for National Prohibition Reform held a conference in Cleveland, Ohio. A platform calling for repeal of the Eighteenth amendment was adopted, and Mrs. Charles Sabin of New York, founder of the organization, was elected its new president.

Boyhood Friends Meet Again as Bank Chiefs

Hardin, Mont.—A boyhood friendship which spanned a half century of silence and separation was renewed here recently when two bank presidents clasped hands and exchanged reminiscences.

As a boy Charles Helmer, now president of the First National bank of Twin Falls, Idaho, lived at the Wisconsin home of W. E. Warren, now president of the Big Horn bank of Hardin. The youths became fast friends, but when necessity of making a living brought separation they soon lost track of each other.

When Helmer crafted Warren by long distance telephone on business the latter immediately recognized the instructive voice as the one that was that of his boyhood pal, and the reunion followed.

Employ Flame Guns to Kill Locusts by Tons

Cairo.—The Egyptian government is meeting this year's locust menace by making war on those enemies of the country. Already nearly 300 tons of locusts have been killed by flame guns in the Sinai peninsula.

So far the attempts of the swarms to reach the fertile Nile valley have been fruitless. A big battle was fought at Kantara, where the slaughter amounted to eleven tons and another big swarm was overwhelmed, like Pharaoh's host, in the Red sea, near Suez.

The danger now is that swarms have been breeding in the Sinai peninsula, and the young are likely to be hatched shortly.

AMONG the victims of airplane accidents were two noted men, Count Henri de la Vaulx of Paris, president of the International Aeronautical federation, and three companions were electrocuted at Jersey City when their plane ran into a power cable in a fog. Maj. Lionel M. Woolson, army air reserve, chief aeronautical engineer of the Packard Motor company and inventor of the Packard Diesel aircraft engine, and two companions were killed near Attica when their Diesel motored plane crashed into a hillside during a blinding snowstorm. They were taking the plane to New York for exhibition in the aircraft show. Major Woolson designed the motor used by Commander Byrd in his flight to Honolulu, the X-type motor for Lieut. Al Williams' racing plane two years ago and the engines of the navy dirigible Shenandoah.

WITH Gates W. McGarrah of New York as president, Leon Fraser as deputy president and Pierre Quesada as general manager, the bank for international settlements at Basel, Switzerland, was fully organized and ready for work. The directorate decided that the issue of shares of stock of the bank should take place on the eighth day after ratification of the Young plan by Great Britain and Italy. On that day the new scheme of handling German reparations becomes officially operative. The directors decided to enter into trust agreements with Hungary, Bulgaria, and Czechoslovakia to handle the collection of their reparations. Mr. McGarrah was empowered to open banking accounts whenever he pleases if the local and central banks do not object.
